

Called to Academic &

Leadership

Excellence...

Building character and confidence

Our Mission

The mission of CALEB is to partner with parents, schools, churches, and universities to assist in nurturing a culture of academic and leadership excellence among young students of all disciplines leading to the development of mature adults equipped for a lifetime of discovering new resources for learning.

How:

By facilitating connections with professionals, institutions of higher education, the workplace, and older students at various levels in a creative learning environment...This builds relationships.

By using educational challenges in the field of science and medicine to reinforce basics such as reading, writing, and speaking...This builds life skills.

By using hands-on problem-solving activities to fully engage students in the learning process...This builds experience.

By creating opportunities for students to taste small measures of success in educational challenges...This builds confidence.

By creating opportunities for students to take on leadership roles...This builds character.

By providing role models in various professions and of varied backgrounds...This builds motivation.

This approach will enable the students to make the connection between knowledge and its applications, while helping them to envision themselves in the very professions that captivate their attention. This will help provide the motivation they need to excel.
